Keyword: aberdeen area humane society photos

Introduction:

The Aberdeen Area Humane Society, like many other animal shelters, relies heavily on the power of photography to connect adoptable animals with their forever homes. High-quality `aberdeen area humane society photos` are crucial for showcasing the animals' personalities and attracting potential adopters. This article explores various methodologies and approaches to capturing compelling `aberdeen area humane society photos` that effectively highlight the animals' unique qualities and increase their chances of adoption.

I. Understanding the Goal of Aberdeen Area Humane Society Photos:

The primary goal of `aberdeen area humane society photos` is to find loving homes for the animals in their care. This means the photos must be more than just snapshots; they need to be persuasive marketing tools. The images should:

Highlight the animal's best features: This involves focusing on their positive attributes, such as their playful nature, calm demeanor, or unique markings.

Evoke emotion: Good photos should connect with viewers on an emotional level, making them want to learn more about the animal.

Show the animal in a positive light: Avoid photos that highlight negative aspects, such as fear, aggression, or illness (unless medically relevant and clearly explained).

Be high-quality and well-lit: Professional-looking images are more likely to attract attention and convey professionalism from the shelter.

II. Methodologies for Capturing Compelling Aberdeen Area Humane Society Photos:

Several approaches can be employed to capture effective `aberdeen area humane society photos` :

A. Environmental Portraits: These photos showcase the animal in their environment, whether it's a kennel, play area, or even outdoors. Environmental portraits provide context and can reveal aspects of the animal's personality. For example, a playful dog interacting with toys or a cat lounging comfortably in a sunbeam can be very appealing.

B. Action Shots: Capturing the animal in action—playing, running, or engaging in other activities—can showcase their energy and personality. These photos can be especially effective for younger, more energetic animals. However, safety should always be the priority.

C. Close-up Portraits: Close-up shots emphasize the animal's facial features and expressions, allowing viewers to connect with their eyes and personality. These photos are excellent for showcasing the unique beauty of each animal.

D. Lifestyle Photos: These photos depict the animal engaged in activities that resemble a typical day in a loving home. This could include cuddling with a blanket, looking out a window, or playing with a favorite toy. These images help potential adopters visualize the animal in their own homes.

III. Technical Aspects of Aberdeen Area Humane Society Photos:

Lighting: Natural, soft light is ideal for pet photography. Avoid harsh shadows and direct sunlight. Consider using reflectors to fill in shadows and create even lighting.

Composition: Use the rule of thirds to create balanced and visually appealing photos. Place the animal off-center to create a more dynamic composition.

Camera Settings: A fast shutter speed is essential to freeze motion and avoid blurry images, especially when photographing active animals. A wide aperture (low f-stop number) can create a shallow depth of field, focusing attention on the animal.

Editing: Subtle editing can enhance the photos without making them look unnatural. Adjust brightness, contrast, and saturation to improve the overall look of the images. Avoid over-processing.

IV. Ethical Considerations in Aberdeen Area Humane Society Photos:

Animal Welfare: The animal's comfort and safety should always be the top priority. Avoid stressful situations or forcing the animal into uncomfortable poses.

Honesty and Accuracy: The photos should accurately represent the animal's appearance and behavior. Avoid using misleading edits or filters.

Respectful Representation: Show animals with dignity and avoid stereotypes.

V. Utilizing Aberdeen Area Humane Society Photos for Adoption:

Online Platforms: High-quality `aberdeen area humane society photos` are essential for online adoption profiles on websites like Petfinder and Adopt-a-Pet.

Social Media: Use engaging photos on social media platforms like Facebook, Instagram, and TikTok to reach a wider audience.

Print Materials: Use professional photos in brochures, flyers, and adoption event materials.

Conclusion:

Creating effective `aberdeen area humane society photos` requires a combination of technical skill, understanding of animal behavior, and a commitment to ethical practices. By employing the methodologies and approaches discussed in this article, the Aberdeen Area Humane Society can significantly improve the success of its adoption program and find loving homes for all the animals in their care. Remember, every photograph is an opportunity to tell a story and connect an animal with its future family.

FAQs:

1. What type of camera is best for photographing shelter animals? A DSLR or mirrorless camera is ideal, but even a good quality smartphone camera can produce excellent results with proper lighting and technique.
1. How do I handle a shy or scared animal during a photoshoot? Patience and gentle encouragement are key. Let the animal approach you at its own pace and avoid any sudden movements.
1. What should I do if an animal is behaving aggressively? Prioritize safety. Consult with shelter staff and possibly postpone the photoshoot until the animal is in a calmer state.
1. How can I make my photos stand out from other shelter photos? Focus on capturing the animal's unique personality and showcasing its best features in creative and engaging ways.
1. What editing software is recommended for enhancing shelter animal photos? Adobe Lightroom and Photoshop are popular choices, but many free alternatives exist, such as GIMP.
1. How can I get volunteers involved in taking photos at the shelter? Organize a photography workshop to train volunteers on proper techniques and ethical considerations.
1. What is the best time of day to take photos of shelter animals? The "golden hour" (sunrise and sunset) provides soft, warm lighting that is flattering for animals.

1. How can I ensure my photos are accessible to people with visual impairments? Provide detailed captions describing the animal's appearance and personality.
1. How can I use photos to tell the animal's story and increase adoption rates? Include captions that highlight the animal's personality, history (if known), and ideal home environment.

aberdeen area humane society photos: Human Dimension and Interior Space Julius Panero, Martin Zelnik, 2014-01-21 The study of human body measurements on a comparative basis is known as anthropometrics. Its applicability to the design process is seen in the physical fit, or interface, between the human body and the various components of interior space. Human Dimension and Interior Space is the first major anthropometrically based reference book of design standards for use by all those involved with the physical planning and detailing of interiors, including interior designers, architects, furniture designers, builders, industrial designers, and students of design. The use of anthropometric data, although no substitute for good design or sound professional judgment should be viewed as one of the many tools required in the design process. This comprehensive overview of anthropometrics consists of three parts. The first part deals with the theory and application of anthropometrics and includes a special section dealing with physically disabled and elderly people. It provides the designer with the fundamentals of anthropometrics and a basic understanding of how interior design standards are established. The second part contains easy-to-read, illustrated anthropometric tables, which provide the most current data available on human body size, organized by age and percentile groupings. Also included is data relative to the range of joint motion and body sizes of children. The third part contains hundreds of dimensioned drawings, illustrating in plan and section the proper anthropometrically based relationship between user and space. The types of spaces range from residential and commercial to recreational and institutional, and all dimensions include metric conversions. In the Epilogue, the authors challenge the interior design profession, the building industry, and the furniture manufacturer to seriously explore the problem of adjustability in design. They expose the fallacy of designing to accommodate the so-called average man, who, in fact, does not exist. Using government data, including studies prepared by Dr. Howard Stoudt, Dr. Albert Damon, and Dr. Ross McFarland, formerly of the Harvard School of Public Health, and Jean Roberts of the U.S. Public Health Service, Panero and Zelnik have devised a system of interior design reference standards, easily understood through a series of charts and situation drawings. With Human Dimension and Interior Space, these standards are now accessible to all designers of interior environments.

aberdeen area humane society photos: Animal Liberation Peter Singer, 2015-10-01 How should we treat non-human animals? In this immensely powerful and influential book (now with a new introduction by Sapiens author Yuval Noah Harari), the renowned moral philosopher Peter Singer addresses this simple question with trenchant, dispassionate reasoning. Accompanied by the disturbing evidence of factory farms and laboratories, his answers triggered the birth of the animal rights movement. 'An extraordinary book which has had extraordinary effects... Widely known as the bible of the animal liberation movement' Independent on Sunday In the decades since this landmark classic first appeared, some public attitudes to animals may have changed but our continued abuse of animals in factory farms and as tools for research shows that the underlying ideas Singer exposes as ethically indefensible are still dominating the way we treat animals. As Yuval Harari's brilliantly argued introduction makes clear, this book is as relevant now as the day it was written.

aberdeen area humane society photos: Shelter Medicine for Veterinarians and Staff Lila Miller, Stephen Zawistowski, 2013-01-04 Shelter Medicine for Veterinarians and Staff, Second Edition is the premier reference on shelter medicine. Divided into sections on management, species-specific animal husbandry, infectious disease, animal cruelty, shelter programs, behavior, and spay/neuter, the new edition has been reformatted in a more user-friendly design with briefer chapters and information cross-referenced between chapters. Maintaining a herd health approach, new and expanded chapters address issues of husbandry, infectious disease management, behavior forensics, population management, forensic toxicology, animal cruelty and hoarding, enrichment in shelters, spay/neuter, and shelter design. Now in full color, this fully updated new edition delivers a vast array of knowledge necessary to provide appropriate and humane care for shelter animals. Veterinarians, veterinary technicians and shelter professionals will find this to be the go-to resource on the unique aspects of shelter medicine that help facilitate operating a modern, efficient, and humane shelter.

aberdeen area humane society photos: Mark Neville Mark Neville, David Company, 2016 Fancy Pictures brings together seven of Mark Neville's socially engaged and intensely immersive projects from the last decade. Neville often pictures working communities in a collaborative process intended to be of direct, practical benefit to his subjects. The Port Glasgow Book Project (2004) is a book of his social documentary images of the Scottish town. Never commercially available, copies were given directly to all 8,000 residents. Deeds Not Words (2011) focuses on Corby, an English town that suffered serious industrial pollution. Neville produced a book to be given free to the environmental health services department of each of the 433 local councils in the UK. Battle Against Stigma and Helmand are both projects resulting from Neville's time in Afghanistan. Two projects for the USA are also included. Invited by the Andy Warhol Museum in 2012, Neville examined social divisions in Pittsburgh, and the photo-essay Here is London, commissioned by The New York Times Magazine, echoes the style of the celebrated photographers who documented the boom and bust of the 1970s and '80s.

aberdeen area humane society photos: Slavery and the British Country House Madge Dresser, Andrew Hann, 2013 The British country house has long been regarded as the jewel in the nation's heritage crown. But the country house is also an expression of wealth and power, and as scholars reconsider the nation's colonial past, new questions are being posed about these great houses and their links to Atlantic slavery. This book, authored by a range of academics and heritage professionals, grew out of a 2009 conference on 'Slavery and the British Country house: mapping the current research' organised by English Heritage in partnership with the University of the West of England, the National Trust and the Economic History Society. It asks what links might be established between the wealth derived from slavery and the British country house and what implications such links should have for the way such properties are represented to the public today. Lavishly illustrated and based on the latest scholarship, this wide-ranging and innovative volume provides in-depth examinations of individual houses, regional studies and critical reconsiderations of existing heritage sites, including two studies specially commissioned by English Heritage and one sponsored by the National Trust.

aberdeen area humane society photos: Animalkind Ingrid Newkirk, Gene Stone, 2021-01-19 The founder and president of PETA, Ingrid Newkirk, and bestselling author Gene Stone explore the wonders of animal life with "admiration and empathy" (The New York Times Book Review) and offer tools for living more kindly toward them. In the last few decades, a wealth of new information has emerged about who animals are: astounding beings with intelligence, emotions, intricate communications networks, and myriad abilities. In Animalkind, Ingrid Newkirk and Gene Stone present these findings in a concise and awe-inspiring way, detailing a range of surprising discoveries, like that geese fall in love and stay with a partner for life, that fish "sing" underwater, and that elephants use their trunks to send subsonic signals, alerting other herds to danger miles away. Newkirk and Stone pair their tour through the astounding lives of animals with a guide to the exciting new tools that allow humans to avoid using or abusing animals as we once did. Whether it's medicine, product testing, entertainment, clothing, or food, there are now better options to all the uses animals once served in human life. We can substitute warmer, lighter faux fleece for wool, choose vegan versions of everything from shrimp to marshmallows, reap the benefits of animal-free medical research, and scrap captive orca exhibits and elephant rides for virtual reality and animatronics. Animalkind provides a fascinating look at why our fellow living beings deserve our respect, and lays out the steps everyone can take to put this new understanding into action.

aberdeen area humane society photos: Ethical Vegan Jordi Casamitjana, 2020-12-03 'Powerful and poignant.' Virginia McKenna OBE, Born Free Ethical veganism is not just a diet. Not just an opinion; nor a trend. This is a 21st-century revolution which began more than twenty centuries ago. Ethical veganism is not only about the food you choose to consume, it is a coherent philosophical belief that affects most areas of your life, and which could be the answer to today's global crises. Jordi Casamitjana is the vegan zoologist and animal protection campaigner whose landmark Employment Tribunal in 2020 made ethical veganism a protected belief in Great Britain. Ethical Vegan describes Jordi's extraordinary life and the animal encounters which led him to veganism and legal victory. It debunks myths and dispels preconceptions, offering a comprehensive analysis of veganism as a philosophy and as a socio-political transformative movement. Taking in history, science and everyday living, it explores how it is possible to dress ethically, travel, consume and work responsibly and, of course, eat well without compromising vegan ethics. Ethical Vegan is a riveting read - Jordi Casamitjana argues passionately for humans to interact with the world in a positive and compassionate way. This thought-provoking manifesto for doing no harm has the power to open people's minds and help to achieve a better future for all living things and the planet. As informative as it is incisive, as inspiring as it is inviting, this book will become one of the stand-out pieces of literature in the animal liberation movement. A must read whether you are vegan, vegetarian or otherwise!' Jay Brave aberdeen area humane society photos: What Parish Are You From? Eileen M. McMahon, 2014-07-11 For Irish Americans as well as for Chicago's other ethnic groups, the local parish once formed the nucleus of daily life. Focusing on the parish of St. Sabina's in the southwest Chicago neighborhood of Auburn-Gresham, Eileen McMahon takes a penetrating look at the response of Catholic ethnics to life in twentieth-century America. She reveals the role the parish church played in achieving a cohesive and vital ethnic neighborhood and shows how ethno-religious distinctions gave way to racial differences as a central point of identity and conflict. For most of this century the parish served as an important mechanism for helping Irish Catholics cope with a dominant Protestant-American culture. Anti-Catholicism in the society at large contributed to dependency on parishes and to a desire for separateness from the American mainstream. As much as Catholics may have wanted to insulate themselves in their parish communities, however, Chicago demographics and the fluid nature of the larger society made this ultimately impossible. Despite efforts at integration attempted by St. Sabina's liberal clergy, white parishioners viewed black migration into their neighborhood as a threat to their way of life and resisted it even as they relocated to the suburbs. The transition from white to black neighborhoods and parishes is a major theme of twentieth-century urban history. The experience of St. Sabina's, which changed from a predominantly Irish parish to a vibrant African-American Catholic community, provides insights into this social trend and suggests how the interplay between faith and ethnicity contributes to a resistance to change.

aberdeen area humane society photos: Becoming Friends of Time John Swinton, Professor of Practical Theology and Pastoral Care John Swinton, 2018-01-15 Time is central to all that humans do. Time structures days, provides goals, shapes dreams--and limits lives. Time appears to be tangible, real, and progressive, but, in the end, time proves illusory. Though mercurial, time can be deadly for those with disabilities. To participate fully in human society has come to mean yielding to the criterion of the clock. The absence of thinking rapidly, living punctually, and biographical narration leaves persons with disabilities vulnerable. A worldview driven by the demands the clock makes on the lives of those with dementia or profound neurological and intellectual disabilities seems pointless. And yet, Jesus comes to the world to transform time. Jesus calls us to slow down, take time, and learn to recognize the strangeness of living within God's time. He calls us to be gentle, patient, kind; to walk slowly and timefully with those whom society desires to leave behind. In Becoming Friends of Time, John Swinton crafts a theology of time that draws us toward a perspective wherein time is a gift and a calling. Time is not a commodity nor is time to be mastered. Time is a gift of God to humans, but is also a gift given back to God by humans. Swinton wrestles with critical questions that emerge from theological reflection on time and disability: rethinking doctrine for those who can never grasp Jesus with their intellects; reimagining discipleship and vocation for those who have forgotten who Jesus is; reconsidering salvation for those who, due to neurological damage, can be one person at one time and then be someone else in an instant. In the end, Swinton invites the reader to spend time with the experiences of people with profound neurological disability, people who can change our perceptions of time, enable us to grasp the fruitful rhythms of God's time, and help us learn to live in ways that are unimaginable within the boundaries of the time of the clock.

aberdeen area humane society photos: The Basic Fault Michael Balint, 2013-04-15 In this volume, Michael Balint, who over the years made a sustained and brilliant contribution to the theory and technique of psychoanalysis, develops the concept of the 'basic fault' in the bio-psychology structure of every individual, involving in varying degree both mind and body. Balint traces the origins of the basic fault to the early formative period, during which serious discrepancies arise between the needs of the individual and the care and nurture available. These Discrepancies create a kind of deficiency state. On the basis of this concept, Balint assumes the existence of a specific area of the mind in which all the processes have an exclusively two-person structure consisting of the individual and the individual's primary object. Its dynamic force, originating from the basic fault has the overwhelming aim of 'putting things right'. This area is contrasted with two others: the area of the Oedipus complex, which has essentially a triangular structure comprising the individual and two of his objects, and whose characteristic dynamism has the form of a conflict; and the area of creation, in which there are no objects in the proper sense, and whose characteristic force is the urge to create, to produce aberdeen area humane society photos: Being Alive Tim Ingold, 2011-04-19 Anthropology is a disciplined inquiry into the conditions and potentials of human life. Generations of theorists, however, have expunged life from their accounts, treating it as the mere output of patterns, codes, structures or systems variously defined as genetic or cultural, natural or social. Building on his classic work The Perception of the Environment, Tim Ingold sets out to restore life to where it should belong, at the heart of anthropological concern. Being Alive ranges over such themes as the vitality of materials, what it means to make things, the perception and formation of the ground, the mingling of earth and sky in the weather-world, the experiences of light, sound and feeling, the role of storytelling in the integration of knowledge, and the potential of drawing to unite observation and description. Our humanity, Ingold argues, does not come ready-made but is continually fashioned in our movements along ways of life. Starting from the idea of life as a process of wayfaring, Ingold presents a radically new understanding of movement, knowledge and description as dimensions not just of being in the world, but of being alive to what is going on there.

aberdeen area humane society photos: Drawing Futures Bob Sheil, Frédéric Migayrou, Luke Pearson, Laura Allen, 2016-11-11 Drawing Futures brings together international designers and artists for speculations in contemporary drawing for art and architecture. Despite numerous developments in technological manufacture and computational design that provide new grounds for designers, the act of drawing still plays a central role as a vehicle for speculation. There is a rich and long history of drawing tied to innovations in technology as well as to revolutions in our philosophical understanding of the world. In reflection of a society now underpinned by computational networks and interfaces allowing hitherto unprecedented views of the world, the changing status of the drawing and its representation as a political act demands a platform for reflection and innovation. Drawing Futures will present a compendium of projects, writings and interviews that critically reassess the act of drawing and where its future may lie. Drawing Futures focuses on the discussion of how the field of drawing may expand synchronously alongside technological and computational developments. The book coincides with an international conference of the same name, taking place at The Bartlett School of Architecture, UCL, in November 2016. Bringing together practitioners from many creative fields, the book discusses how drawing is changing in relation to new technologies for the production and dissemination of ideas.

aberdeen area humane society photos: Lines Tim Ingold, 2016-04-14 What do walking, weaving, observing, storytelling, singing, drawing and writing have in common? The answer is that they all proceed along lines. In this extraordinary book Tim Ingold imagines a world in which everyone and everything consists of interwoven or interconnected lines and lays the foundations for a completely new discipline: the anthropological archaeology of the line. Ingold's argument leads us through the music of Ancient Greece and contemporary Japan, Siberian labyrinths and Roman roads, Chinese calligraphy and the printed alphabet, weaving a path between antiquity and the present. Drawing on a multitude of disciplines including archaeology, classical studies, art history, linguistics, psychology, musicology, philosophy and many others, and including more than seventy illustrations, this book takes us on an exhilarating intellectual journey that will change the way we look at the world and how we go about in it. This Routledge Classics edition includes a new preface by the author.
