Understanding the Accounting Journal Entries Cheat Sheet

This comprehensive guide serves as your ultimate accounting journal entries cheat sheet, providing a clear and concise overview of the fundamental principles and practical applications of recording financial transactions. Mastering journal entries is crucial for any aspiring or practicing accountant, as they form the bedrock of accurate financial reporting. This accounting journal entries cheat sheet will help you navigate the complexities of debits, credits, and the accounting equation.

The Fundamental Principles: Debits and Credits

The heart of any accounting journal entries cheat sheet lies in understanding the fundamental debit and credit rules. The accounting equation, $\text{Assets} = \text{Liabilities} + \text{Equity}$, is the cornerstone of double-entry bookkeeping. Every transaction affects at least two accounts, maintaining the balance of this equation.

Debits: Debits increase the balance of asset, expense, and dividend accounts. They decrease the balance of liability, equity, and revenue accounts. Think of "debit" as meaning "left" side of the journal entry.

Credits: Credits increase the balance of liability, equity, and revenue accounts. They decrease the balance of asset, expense, and dividend accounts. Think of "credit" as meaning "right" side of the journal entry.

This accounting journal entries cheat sheet simplifies this with a mnemonic device: DEAD CLIC

DEAD: Debits increase Expenses, Assets, and Dividends.

CLIC: Credits increase Liabilities, Income, and Capital.

Common Account Types and Their Treatment

This section of our accounting journal entries cheat sheet details how different account types are handled in journal entries:

Assets: Cash, Accounts Receivable, Inventory, Equipment, Buildings, etc. Increases are debited, decreases are credited.

Liabilities: Accounts Payable, Salaries Payable, Loans Payable, etc. Increases are credited, decreases are debited.

Equity: Owner's Equity, Retained Earnings. Increases are credited, decreases are debited.

Revenues: Sales Revenue, Service Revenue, Interest Revenue. Increases are credited, decreases are debited.

Expenses: Rent Expense, Salaries Expense, Utilities Expense, etc. Increases are debited, decreases are credited.

Constructing a Journal Entry: A Step-by-Step Approach

This section of your accounting journal entries cheat sheet provides a practical step-by-step guide:

1. Identify the Accounts Affected: Determine which accounts are impacted by the transaction.

1. Determine the Debit and Credit: Apply the debit and credit rules to each account based on whether it increases or decreases.
