Keyword: 15 minute lesson plan for interview

Introduction: Landing your dream job often hinges on a successful interview. While the overall interview process might take longer, the ability to concisely and effectively convey your skills and experience within short, focused segments is crucial. This guide provides a detailed breakdown of how to create a compelling 15 minute lesson plan for interview, focusing on its structure, content, and delivery. Mastering the art of the short, impactful presentation is invaluable, not just for interviews but also for networking events and career advancement presentations. This 15 minute lesson plan for interview framework can be adapted to showcase various skills and experiences, from technical expertise to leadership abilities.

I. Structuring Your 15 Minute Lesson Plan for Interview

A successful 15 minute lesson plan for interview requires meticulous planning. Avoid rambling; instead, prioritize clarity and impact. A common structure is:

Introduction (2 minutes): Begin with a captivating hook - a relevant anecdote, a statistic, or a bold statement related to the job description. Clearly state your objective: to demonstrate your suitability for the role. Briefly highlight your key skills and experience relevant to the position.

Body (10 minutes): This is the core of your 15 minute lesson plan for interview. Focus on 2-3 key accomplishments or skills that directly align with the job requirements. For each, use the STAR method (Situation, Task, Action, Result) to showcase your abilities. Use quantifiable results whenever possible (e.g., "Increased sales by 15%," "Reduced operational costs by 10%"). Visual aids, if permitted, can enhance engagement. Remember, this isn't just a recitation of your resume; it's a demonstration of your abilities.

Conclusion (3 minutes): Summarize your key qualifications and reiterate your enthusiasm for the position. Reinforce your alignment with the company's values and goals. End with a strong call to action - express your eagerness to learn more and answer any questions. This part of the 15 minute lesson plan for interview leaves a lasting impression.

II. Content Selection for Your 15 Minute Lesson Plan for Interview

Choosing the right content is paramount for a successful 15 minute lesson plan for interview. Carefully analyze the job description and identify the most important skills and experiences required. Tailor your content to match those requirements. Consider:

Skills: Identify your most relevant and transferable skills. Focus on skills like problem-solving, teamwork, communication, leadership, and technical proficiency, demonstrating them through specific examples.

Accomplishments: Showcase achievements that demonstrate the impact you've made in previous roles. Quantify your results whenever possible to highlight your contributions.

Company Research: Demonstrate your understanding of the company's mission, values, and recent activities. Show how your skills and experience align with their goals. This shows initiative and genuine interest, crucial elements in a successful 15 minute lesson plan for interview.

III. Delivery and Practice for Your 15 Minute Lesson Plan for Interview

A well-structured 15 minute lesson plan for interview is only as good as its delivery. Practice is essential for smooth and confident delivery.

Rehearse: Practice your presentation multiple times, timing yourself to ensure you stay within the 15-minute limit. Record yourself to identify areas for improvement in your delivery.

Body Language: Maintain eye contact, use confident body language, and project your voice clearly. Your non-verbal communication is just as important as your words.

Handling Questions: Anticipate potential questions and prepare concise and thoughtful answers. Practice responding to challenging questions with composure and professionalism. This is a vital aspect of a successful 15 minute lesson plan for interview.

IV. Adapting Your 15 Minute Lesson Plan for Interview

The 15 minute lesson plan for interview is a flexible framework. Adapt it to suit different interview styles and formats. For example:

Behavioral Interviews: Focus on your past experiences using the STAR method.

Technical Interviews: Prepare for technical questions related to your skills and experience.

Case Studies: Practice analyzing and solving case studies relevant to the industry.

V. The Importance of the 15 Minute Lesson Plan for Interview in the Modern Job Market

In today's competitive job market, a well-crafted 15 minute lesson plan for interview can significantly increase your chances of success. It demonstrates:

Organization and Preparation: A structured presentation shows you're organized and prepared, crucial qualities employers seek.

Communication Skills: Effectively communicating your skills and experience within a limited timeframe demonstrates strong communication skills.

Time Management: Staying within the allotted time showcases your ability to manage your time effectively.

Conclusion:

Creating a compelling 15 minute lesson plan for interview requires careful planning, thoughtful content selection, and diligent practice. By following this guide and adapting it to your specific circumstances, you can significantly increase your chances of making a positive and lasting impression on potential employers. Remember, this concise presentation is not just about showcasing your skills; it's about demonstrating your ability to communicate effectively, manage your time, and leave a memorable impact. Mastering the 15 minute lesson plan for interview is a valuable skill that extends beyond the interview room, benefiting your career for years to come.

FAQs:

1. Can I use visual aids in my 15-minute lesson plan for interview? Yes, if permitted, visual aids (slides, charts) can enhance your presentation, but keep them concise and relevant.
1. What if I run out of time during my 15-minute lesson plan for interview? Prioritize your key points. It's better to cover fewer points thoroughly than to rush through many and appear disorganized.
1. How can I tailor my 15-minute lesson plan for interview to different industries? Focus on the industry-specific skills and accomplishments that align with the job requirements.
1. Is it okay to memorize my 15-minute lesson plan for interview? While memorization can help with delivery, aim for a conversational tone. Memorizing word-for-word can sound unnatural.
1. How do I handle unexpected questions during my 15-minute lesson plan for interview? Remain calm, take a moment to gather your thoughts, and answer honestly and concisely.
1. What if the interviewer interrupts me during my 15-minute lesson plan for interview? Listen attentively to their question or comment, address their concerns briefly, and then return to your presentation.

1. Should I practice my 15-minute lesson plan for interview in front of others? Yes, practicing in front of friends, family, or mentors can help you identify areas for improvement and build confidence.
1. How can I make my 15-minute lesson plan for interview engaging? Use storytelling techniques, incorporate relevant examples, and maintain an enthusiastic and confident demeanor.
1. What is the most important aspect of a successful 15-minute lesson plan for interview? Clarity, conciseness, and relevance to the job description are paramount.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: A Practical Guide to Teaching Research Methods in Education Aimee LaPointe Terosky, Vicki L. Baker, Jeffrey C. Sun, 2023-03-23 A Practical Guide to Teaching Research Methods in Education brings together more than 60 faculty experts. The contributors share detailed lesson plans about selected research concepts or skills in education and related disciplines, as well as discussions of the intellectual preparation needed to effectively teach the lesson. Grounded in the wisdom of practice from exemplary and award-winning faculty from diverse institution types, career stages, and demographic backgrounds, this book draws on both the practical and cognitive elements of teaching educational (and related) research to students in higher education today. The book is divided into eight sections, covering the following key elements within education (and related) research: problems and research questions, literature reviews and theoretical frameworks, research design, quantitative methods, qualitative methods, mixed methods, findings and discussions, and special topics, such as student identity development, community and policy engaged research, and research dissemination. Within each section, individual chapters specifically focus on skills and perspectives needed to navigate the complexities of educational research. The concluding chapter reflects on how teachers of research also need to be learners of research, as faculty continuously strive for mastery, identity, and creativity in how they guide our next generation of knowledge producers through the research process. Undergraduate and graduate professors of education (and related) research courses, dissertation chairs/committee members, faculty development staff members, and graduate students would all benefit from the lessons and expert commentary contained in this book.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: Essentials of Science Classroom Assessment Xiufeng Liu, 2010 Grounded in the constructivist inquiry approach to science teaching and learning, Essentials of Science Classroom Assessment bridges science assessment research and practice, and connects science assessment and learning. This book will help students in science methods courses to develop essential skills in conducting science assessment to support student learning. The chapters parallel a typical structure of a science methods course, making the integration of this text into a science methods course seamless. Due to its practical and concise nature, this book is also ideal for practicing science teachers to use as a professional development resource.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: Teaching Reading and Writing Beyond High-stakes Testing Rongrong Dong, 2023-03-10 This book tells about an exemplary high school Chinese language arts teacher's effort in nurturing lifelong readers and writers under the test-driven culture in China's society. It looks closely at his everyday literacy practices, focuses on his ways of creating authentic reading and writing spaces for students beyond test preparation. With the lens of social constructivism, the case study reveals his efforts of creating safe learning environment, modeling his literate life, connecting real life with literacy learning, and building a school-wide literate life for students. Furthermore, he also collaborates with other Chinese language arts faculty and reaches out to school administrators and educators to gain any potential teaching resource for students. The findings indicate exemplary teachers are not only equipped with professional knowledge but also inter/intrapersonal knowledge and practical knowledge in their teaching career, which might be enlightening in today's high-stakes testing culture. The book will appeal to scholars of literacy education and teacher education, as well as pre-service and in-service teachers.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: Repositioning Pedagogical Content Knowledge in Teachers' Knowledge for Teaching Science Anne Hume, Rebecca Cooper, Andreas Borowski, 2019-01-28 This book enhances readers' understanding of science teachers' professional knowledge, and illustrates how the Pedagogical Content Knowledge research agenda can make a difference in teachers' practices and how students learn science. Importantly, it offers an updated international perspective on the evolving nature of Pedagogical Content Knowledge and how it is shaping research and teacher education agendas for science teaching. The first few chapters background and introduce a new model known as the Refined Consensus Model (RCM) of Pedagogical Content Knowledge (PCK) in science education, and clarify and demonstrate its use in research and teacher education and practice. Subsequent chapters show how this new consensus model of PCK in science education is strongly connected with empirical data of varying nature, contains a tailored language to describe the nature of PCK in science education, and can be used as a framework for illuminating past studies and informing the design of future PCK studies in science education. By presenting and discussing the RCM of PCK within a variety of science education contexts, the book makes the model significantly more applicable to teachers' work.

Psychology in Education Barbara Kelly, Daniel F. Perkins, 2012-08-20 This book aims to help policy makers, stakeholders, practitioners, and teachers in psychology and education provide more effective interventions in educational contexts. It responds to disappointment and global concern about the failure to implement psychological and other interventions successfully in real-world contexts. Often interventions, carefully designed and trialed under controlled conditions, prove unpredictable or ineffective in uncontrolled, real-life situations. This book looks at why this is the case and pulls together evidence from a range of sources to create original frameworks and guidelines for effective implementation of interventions.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: Preparing Quality Teachers Drew Polly, Eva Garin, 2022-03-01 National and international teacher education organizations and scholars have called for an increased emphasis on clinical practice in educator preparation programs. These recommendations include specific efforts to increase the duration, diversity, and quality of experiences that teacher candidates engage in during their time in P-12 schools while earning their teaching license. This book includes a robust set of chapters that include conceptual, theoretical, and empirical chapters related to innovative approaches in clinical practice in educator preparation. Authors include teacher educators from around the United States and Canada from a variety of types of higher education institutions. The book provides readers with examples, evidence, and ideas to thoughtfully consider their future direction in examining, planning, and implementing clinical practice experiences for teacher candidates.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: Educational Psychology Angela M. O'Donnell, Johnmarshall Reeve, Jeffrey K. Smith, 2011-12-06 Teachers help students learn, develop, and realize their potential. To become successful in their craft, teachers need to learn how to establish high-quality relationships with their students, and they need to learn how to implement instructional strategies that promote students' learning, development, and potential. To prepare pre-service teachers for the profession, the study of educational psychology can help them to better understand their students and better understand their process of teaching. Such is the twofold purpose of Educational Psychology - to help pre-service teachers understand their future students better and to help them understand all aspects of the teaching-learning situation. The pursuit of these two purposes leads to the ultimate goal of this text - namely, to help pre-service teachers become increasingly able to promote student learning, development, and potential when it becomes their turn to step into the classroom and take full-time responsibility for their own classes.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: Teach Like Finland: 33 Simple Strategies for Joyful Classrooms Timothy D. Walker, 2017-04-18 The best-selling book of easy-to-implement classroom lessons from the world's premier educational system—now available in paperback. Finland shocked the world when its fifteen-year-olds scored highest on the first Programme for International Student Assessment (PISA), a set of tests evaluating critical-thinking skills in math, science, and reading. That was in 2001; even today, this tiny Nordic nation continues to amaze. How does Finnish education—with short school days, light homework loads, and little standardized testing—produce students who match the PISA scores of other nations with more traditional “work ethic” standards? When Timothy Walker started teaching fifth graders at a Helsinki public school, he began a search for the secrets behind the successes of Finland's education system. Highlighting specific strategies that support joyful K-12 classrooms and can be integrated with U.S. educational standards, this book, available in paperback for the first time, gathers what he learned and shows how any teacher can implement many of Finland's best practices. A new foreword by the author addresses the urgent questions of teaching, and living, in these pandemic times.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: Organized Activities As Contexts of Development Joseph L. Mahoney, Reed W. Larson, Jacquelynne S. Eccles, 2005-03-23 School-aged children in the U.S. and other Western nations spend almost half of their waking hours in leisure activities. For some, out-of-school time is perceived as inconsequential or even counterproductive to the health and well-being of young persons. Recently, however, there has been a growing recognition that--along with family, peers, and school--the organized activities in which some youth participate during these hours are important contexts of emotional, social, and civic development. They provide opportunities for young persons to learn and develop competencies that are largely neglected by schools. At the same time, communities and national governments are now channeling considerable resources into creating organized activities for young people's out-of-school time. This volume brings together a multidisciplinary, international group of experts to provide conceptual, empirical, and policy-relevant advances in research on children's and adolescents' participation in the developmental contexts represented by extracurricular activities, and after-school and community programs. Organized Activities as Contexts of Development provides a handbook-like coverage of research in this new emerging field. It considers a broad developmental time-span from middle childhood through early adulthood, providing information on how motivation, participation, and developmental experiences change as youth get older. The contents cover one of the most salient topics in child and adolescent research, education, and social policy, placing consistent emphasis on developmental aspects and implications of organized activity participation for young persons. Representing contributors from several fields of study--psychology, criminal justice, leisure science, sociology, human development, education, prevention, and public policy--the book is designed to appeal to students and scholars in all these areas. Additionally, the volume is written to be of interest to professionals who administer programs and develop policy on youth.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: Job Search In Academe Dawn M. Formo, Cheryl Reed, 2023-07-03 Building on the success of the first, this new edition has been updated to cover the latest hiring trends, changing economic circumstances, and feedback from readers. The authors have expanded the book to deal with issues faced by minority candidates, and have added contributions from scientists to cover such issues as negotiating faculty contracts to ensure adequate lab space and resources. They give more emphasis to applying for non-academic jobs and offer case study scenarios of candidates who have followed both academic and non academic paths. The authors urge readers to go develop a philosophy statement for research and service, as well as for teaching. They explain what's involved in applying for joint positions, offer advice on applying for administrative jobs outside the academy, and prepare the reader for first year academic and corporate performance reviews. They have updated the resources, references, examples and scenarios. This book covers the process for Master's- and Ph.D.-level job-seekers of all disciplines: from identifying sources of information about positions, to advising on the preparation of effective CVs and portfolios, through guidance on the process of interview to final negotiation of terms. Its invaluable advice is informed by the authors' experiences in both academic and corporate arenas, as well as by the narratives of current and recent job seekers. The authors cover the full spectrum of potential positions--adjunct, visiting, temporary and tenure-track faculty appointments--at-year and 2-year institutions. This book includes sample application letters and vitae, a model for job search workshop, and a rich list of resources both in print and on-line. An accompanying Web site offers a wealth of information on locating job postings, complete with hot links to major sites, both general and discipline-specific; presents eight sample application packets by successful humanities, social sciences, and sciences candidates, with accompanying comments on key features by the book's authors; and an extensive listing of useful books and online resources. While being realistic about the trends in higher education, the decline in tenure-track positions, and greater competition for available positions, the authors actively combat the gloom and doom approach of competing books by emphasizing that readers have it in their power to adopt strategies, and take actions and choices, that can greatly improve their chances of success. The authors aim to help candidates see what they already have and how to get that across as clearly as possible to potential hiring committees. Contact the Authors: Share your story! We hope to continue collecting timely narratives to keep Job Search useful, and we welcome your e-mails. Dawn can be reached at dformo@csusm.edu and Cheryl at drcreed@catsforchange.org. 15 minute lesson plan for interview: Flash Feedback [Grades 6-12] Matthew Johnson, 2020-02-11 Beat burnout with time-saving best practices for feedback For ELA teachers, the danger of burnout is all too real. Inundated with seemingly insurmountable piles of papers to read, respond to, and grade, many teachers often find themselves struggling to balance differentiated, individualized feedback with the one resource they are already overextended on—time. Matthew Johnson offers classroom-tested solutions that not only alleviate the feedback-burnout cycle, but also lead to significant growth for students. These time-saving strategies built on best practices for feedback help to improve relationships, ignite motivation, and increase student ownership of learning. Flash Feedback also takes teachers to the next level of strategic feedback by sharing: How to craft effective, efficient, and more memorable feedback Strategies for scaffolding students through the meta-cognitive work necessary for real revision A plan for how to create a culture of feedback, including lessons for how to train students in meaningful peer response Downloadable online tools for teacher and student use Moving beyond the theory of working smarter, not harder, Flash Feedback works deeper by developing practices for teacher efficiency that also boost effectiveness by increasing students' self-efficacy, improving the clarity of our messages, and ultimately creating a classroom centered around meaningful feedback.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: Hollywood or History? Sarah J. Kaka, 2022-01-01 The rationale for the present text, Hollywood or History? An Inquiry-Based Strategy for Using Film to Teach About Inequality and Inequity Throughout History stems from two main things. First and foremost is the fact that the reviews of the first two volumes in the Hollywood or History? series have been overwhelmingly positive, especially as it pertains to the application of the strategy for practitioners. Classroom utility and teacher practice have continued to be the primary objectives in developing the Hollywood or History? strategy. The second thing is that this most recent volume in the series takes it in a new direction--rather than focusing on eras in history, it focuses on the themes of inequity and inequality throughout history, and how teachers can utilize the Hollywood or History? strategy to tackle some of the more complicated content throughout history that many teachers tend to shy away from. There is a firm belief that students' connection to film, along with teachers' ability to use film in an effective manner, will help alleviate some of the challenges of teaching challenging topics such as inequity and inequality in terms of gender, race, socioeconomic status, and so much more. The book provides 30 secondary lesson plans (grades 6-12) that address nine different topics centered around inequity and inequality throughout history, many of which connect students to the world we are living in today. The intended audience for the book are teachers who teach social studies at the 6th-12th grade level both in the United States and other countries. An additional audience will be college and university social studies/history methods professors in the United States and worldwide.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: Handbook of Positive Psychology in Schools

Michael J. Furlong, Rich Gilman, E. Scott Huebner, 2014-02-03 Understanding the factors that encourage young people to become active agents in their own learning is critical. Positive psychology is one lens that can be used to investigate the factors that facilitate a student's sense of agency and active school engagement. In the second edition of this groundbreaking handbook, the editors draw together the latest work on the field, identifying major issues and providing a wealth of descriptive knowledge from renowned contributors. Major topics include: the ways that positive emotions, traits, and institutions promote school achievement and healthy social and emotional development; how specific positive-psychological constructs relate to students and schools and support the delivery of school-based services; and the application of positive psychology to educational policy making. With thirteen new chapters, this edition provides a long-needed centerpiece around which the field can continue to grow, incorporating a new focus on international applications of the field.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: Achieving Balance through Efficiency Stephen Demeo, 2020-01-01 Those starting a career in teaching will put in an incredible amount of energy into their practice in order to learn their craft and become respected professionals. In many cases, however, this energy is not enough to survive as a teacher. Currently, 1 in 5 new teachers will leave the profession after five years. The purpose of this book is to improve the "survivability" of early career teachers by focusing on one key area: Efficiency or what is referred to as Time Management. This book will examine how teachers can become more efficient in their lesson and unit planning, classroom organization, assessment of their students, how they interact with parents, and even when they search and interview for a job. Special emphasis is placed on one of the most challenging aspects of teaching, classroom behavioral management. The underlying basis for this book is a deep belief that successfully managing time will allow teachers to create a positive balance between one's professional and personal lives. It is all too common to see time-stressed and sleep exhausted teachers lose sight of the reasons they entered teaching, eventually falling out of love with their subject and those they teach. This book will tackle head on the demands that teachers face by posing many detailed, practical solutions to time management problems in a variety of different contexts. These solutions will not only come from the author's own experience preparing New York City science students for over 25 years, but from researchers and veteran teachers and administrators who have published their findings and advice in leading educational journals. It is time to stop procrastinating, and draw upon your inner grit to create order, routines, and systems that can be used successfully in your teaching profession.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: Lessons in Liberation The Education for Liberation Network & Critical Resistance Editorial Collective, 2021-09-07 Born from sustained organizing, and rooted in Black and women of color feminisms, disability justice, and other movements, abolition calls for an end to our reliance on imprisonment, policing and surveillance, and to imagine a safer future for our communities. Lessons in Liberation: An Abolitionist Toolkit for Educators offers entry points to build critical and intentional bridges between educational practice and the growing movement for abolition. Designed for educators, parents, and young people, this toolkit shines a light on innovative abolitionist projects, particularly in Pre-K-12 learning contexts. Sections are dedicated to entry points into Prison Industrial Complex abolition and education; the application of the lessons and principles of abolition; and stories about growing abolition outside of school settings. Topics addressed throughout include student organizing, immigrant justice in the face of ICE, approaches to sex education, arts-based curriculum, and building abolitionist skills and thinking in lesson plans. The result of patient and urgent work, and more than five years in the making, Lessons in Liberation invites educators into the work of abolition. Contributors include Black Organizing Project, Chicago Women's Health Center, Mariame Kaba and Project NIA, Bettina L. Love, the MILPA Collective, and artists from the Justseeds Collective, among others.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: How to Start, Teach, & Franchise a Creative Genealogy Writing Class or Club Anne Hart, 2008-06-12 It's easy to start, teach, and franchise a creative genealogy writing club, class, or publication. Start by looking at the descriptions of each business and outline a plan for how your group operates. Flesh out each category with your additional research pertaining to your local area and your resources. Your goal always is to solve problems and get measurable results or find accurate records and resources. Or research personal history and DNA-driven genealogy interpretation reporting. You can make keepsake albums/scrapbooks, put video online or on disc, and create multimedia text and image with sound productions or work with researching records in archives, oral history, or living legacies and time capsules. A living legacy is a celebration of life as it is now. A time capsule contains projects and products, items, records, and research you want given to future generations such as genograms of medical record family history, family newsletters, or genealogy documents, diaries, photos, and video transcribed as text or oral history for future generations without current technology to play the video discs. Or start and plan a family and/or school reunion project or franchise, business or event. Another alternative is the genealogy-related play or skit, life story, or memoir.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: Designing Instruction for Technology-enhanced Learning Patricia L. Rogers, 2003-01-01 Addressing the gap between technology skills and the application of those skills in educational settings, this text offers strategies for using technology to facilitate the teaching and learning experience. Recommendations and practical advice on how to integrate teaching strategies with supporting media technology are provided. Methods such as online teaching, hypermedia instruction, and blended technology learning are explained from theory to practice.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: Teaching English Language Variation in the Global Classroom Michelle D. Devereaux, Chris C. Palmer, 2021-12-24 Teaching English Language Variation in the Global Classroom offers researchers and teachers methods for instructing students on the diversity of the English language on a global scale. A complement to Devereaux and Palmer's Teaching Language Variation in the Classroom, this collection provides real-world, classroom-tested strategies for teaching English language variation in a variety of contexts and countries, and with a variety of language learners. Each chapter balances theory with discussions of curriculum and lesson planning to address how to effectively teach in global classrooms with approaches based on English language variation. With lessons and examples from five continents, the volume covers recent debates on many pedagogical topics, including standardization, stereotyping, code-switching, translanguaging, translation, identity, ideology, empathy, and post-colonial and critical theoretical approaches. The array of pedagogical strategies, accessible linguistic research, clear methods, and resources provided makes it an essential volume for pre-service and in-service teachers, graduate students, and scholars in courses on TESOL, EFL, World/Global Englishes, English as a Medium of Instruction, and Applied Linguistics.

15 minute lesson plan for interview: Hollywood or History? Thomas E. Malewitz, Adam P. Zoeller, 2023-01-01 Teaching and learning through Hollywood, or commercial, film and television productions is anything but a new approach and has been something of a mainstay in the classroom for nearly a century. However, purposeful and effective instruction through film is not problem free and many challenges accompany classroom applications of Hollywood motion pictures. In response to the problems and possibilities associated with teaching through film, we are developing a collection of practical, classroom-ready lesson ideas that might bridge gaps between theory and practice and assist teachers endeavoring to make effective use of film in their classrooms. We believe that film can serve as a powerful tool in the social studies classroom and, where appropriately utilized, foster critical thinking and civic mindedness. The NCSS College, Career, and Civic Life (C3) framework, represents a renewed and formalized emphasis on the perennial social studies goals of deep thinking, reading and writing. Our hope is that this edited book might play a small role in the larger project of supporting practitioners, specifically 6-12 teachers of social studies and world religion content, by offering a collection of classroom-ready tools based on the Hollywood or History? strategy and designed to foster inquiry through the careful use of selected motion pictures and television productions. Topics of interest include the roots, rituals, symbols, beliefs, and controversial or significant people or events related to: • The Abrahamic Religions: Judaism, Christianity, Islam • Eastern Religions/Philosophies: Hinduism, Buddhism • Indigenous Religions/Spirituality: First Nations, Traditional African Religions
