Quelle fantaisie poussait le créole à aller ajouter à une cuisine déjà fortement éclectique, du fait des divers groupes sociaux en présence sur l'île, des plats connus aujourd'hui de quelques spécialistes ? Quelle fantaisie le poussait à aller goûter à ces oiseaux, larves des bois et autres poissons hallucinogènes ? Insatiable voyageur, fabricant d'images, Stéphane Ducandas apporte à travers cet ouvrage l'ultime fruit d'une période photographique que l'on pourrait qualifier d'expérimentale, riche en découvertes, en expériences et surtout en rencontres. Avant d'emprunter la voie, plus ardue et complexe, de la maturité, où s'épanouit toute création, il a voulu une dernière fois nous entraîner à sa suite dans ces chemins de traverse qu'il connaît si bien. Pour partager les trésors singuliers dénichés au cours de ses explorations, il s'est entouré cette fois-ci d'un team intime créatif qui poursuivra l'aventure à ses côtés : Nicolas Ethève, dessinateur, graphiste, illustrateur ; et Aurélie Ducandas, dite ti' plum la Quour. Fidèle à ce regard qui sublime la simplicité au-delà du cliché, Stéphane s'est intéressé à ces saveurs marronnes, héritées, à la fois du temps des esclaves fugitifs et de l'époque, plus proche, des caris la misère. Il a suivi ceux, planteurs, braconniers ou pères de famille, qui en perpétuent la tradition.

However, comparable findings on young scientists in various countries, especially in Africa and developing regions, are generally sparse. Therefore, empirical knowledge on the state of early-career scientists is critical in order to address current challenges faced by those scientists in Africa. This book reports on the main findings of a three-and-a-half-year international project in order to assist its readers in better understanding the African research system in general, and more specifically its young scientists. The first part of the book provides background on the state of science in Africa, and bibliometric findings concerning Africa's scientific production and networks, for the period 2005 to 2015. The second part of the book combines the findings of a large-scale, quantitative survey and more than 200 qualitative interviews to provide a detailed profile of young scientists and the barriers they face in terms of five aspects of their careers: research output; funding; mobility; collaboration; and mentoring. In each case, field and gender differences are also taken into account. The last part of the book comprises conclusions and recommendations to relevant policy- and decision-makers on desirable changes to current research systems in Africa.

Curried Cultures—a wide-ranging collection of essays—explores the relationship between globalization and South Asia through food, covering the cuisine of the colonial period to the contemporary era, investigating its material and symbolic meanings. Curried Cultures challenges disciplinary boundaries in considering South Asian gastronomy by assuming a proximity to dishes and diets that is often missing when food is a lens to investigate other topics. The book's established scholarly contributors examine food to comment on a range of cultural activities as they argue that the practice of cooking and eating matter as an important way of knowing the world and acting on it.

agence de communication reunion 974: Aramis, Or The Love of Technology Bruno Latour, 1996-04-15 Bruno Latour has written a unique and wonderful tale of a technological dream gone wrong. The story of the birth and death of Aramis—the guided-transportation system intended for Paris—is told in this thought-provoking and fictional account by several different parties: an engineer and his professor; company executives and elected officials; a sociologist; and finally Aramis itself, who delivers a passionate plea on behalf of technological innovations that risk being abandoned by their makers. As the young engineer and professor follow Aramis's trail—conducting interviews, analyzing documents, assessing the evidence—perspectives keep shifting: the truth is revealed as multilayered, unascertainable, comprising an array of possibilities worthy of Rashomon. This charming and profound book, part novel and part sociological study, is Latour at his thought-provoking best.

disease threats at the animal-human-environment interface. The 2018 TZG updates and expands on the guidance in the one previous jointly-developed, zoonoses-specific guidance document: the 2008 Tripartite “Zoonotic Diseases: A Guide to Establishing Collaboration between Animal and Human Health Sectors at the Country Level”, developed in WHO South-East Asia Region and Western Pacific Region. The 2018 TZG supports building by countries of the resilience and capacity to address emerging and endemic zoonotic diseases such as avian influenza, rabies, Ebola, and Rift Valley fever, as well as food-borne diseases and antimicrobial resistance, and to minimize their impacts on health, livelihoods, and economies. It additionally supports country efforts to implement WHO International Health Regulations (2005) and OIE international standards, to address gaps identified through external and internal health system evaluations, and to achieve targets of the Sustainable Development Goals. The 2018 TZG provides relevant country ministries and agencies with lessons learned and good practices identified from country-level experiences in taking OH approaches for preparedness, prevention, detection and response to zoonotic disease threats, and provides guidance on multisectoral communication, coordination, and collaboration. It informs on regional and country-level OH activities and relevant unisectoral and multisectoral tools available for countries to use.
